

Government and Co-operationTHE CONTRIBUTORS

Within the general scope of this topic, we invited W.P. Watkins to contribute the "Historical and International Perspectives" we print first: and the other authors to discuss out of their varied experience the relation to Government which British Co-operative organisations should seek at present and for the calculable future.

The following very brief introductions are taken from notes provided by the contributors:-

HAROLD CAMPBELL Since 1970 active professionally in the Housing Association movement and particularly in Co-operative housing. Currently President of Enfield Highway Co-operative Society and a member of the Board of the C.D.A. Has been Secretary of the Co-operative Party, Director of the C.W.S. and member of the Central Executive of the Co-operative Union.

JOHN GALLACHER At present Parliamentary Secretary to the Co-operative Union and a member of the Economic and Social Committee of the European Economic Community.

D.G.C. LAWRENCE At present, Director of the Co-operative Development Agency. Has been civil servant in various departments of State in successive posts up to Under-Secretary, served as secretary to the Pilkington Committee on Broadcasting and chaired the Working Group on a C.D.A.

BRIAN ROSE Now works on Co-operatives in the Housing Corporation's Policy Division. Previously Education Officer at the Corporation's Co-operative Housing Agency and before that a tutor in social and Co-operative studies at the Co-operative College.

W.P. WATKINS Co-operative College student 1919-1920 and tutor 1920-1929. Publications and Education Section, International Co-operative Alliance 1929-1940. Advisor on Co-operative Movements, Control Commission for Germany 1946-1950. Director I.C.A. 1951-1963.

Since retirement assignments for I.L.O. and O.E.C.D. and books on the International Co-operative Movement and the International Co-operative Alliance 1895-1970.